Beauty starts from within. Give your skin what it needs.

Why Your Skin Needs Collagen

Collagen is the most abundant protein in the human body, making up approximately 75% of your skin's dry weight. After age 25, your body produces 1.5% less collagen every year. By 45, you've lost nearly 25% of the collagen your skin depends on — leading to fine lines, sagging, dryness, and loss of that natural glow.

The 5 Types Your Skin Needs

Type I — Bovine Hide

The most abundant collagen in the body. Builds the dense fibril network that gives skin its firmness and reduces the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles.

Type II — Hydrolyzed Chicken

Supports the deeper structural layers beneath the skin's surface, contributing to overall skin integrity and the cartilage matrix beneath the dermis.

Type III — Bovine Hide

Works with Type I to form the elastic network that gives skin its suppleness and bounce. Essential for maintaining skin's youthful texture and resilience.

Type IV — Avian Sternum

Found in the basement membrane — the invisible scaffold anchoring outer skin layers to the deeper dermis. Without Type IV, skin loses its structural foundation.

Type V — Eggshell Membrane

The organiser. Regulates the formation of collagen fibrils, ensuring all other types are assembled correctly into functional structures within the skin matrix.

One formula. Five types. Complete skin support from within.

Five Premium Collagen Sources

Bovine Hide Types I & III	Wild-Caught Marine Type I	Hydrolyzed Chicken Type II	Avian Sternum Types II & IV	Eggshell Membrane Type V
-------------------------------------	-------------------------------------	--------------------------------------	---------------------------------------	------------------------------------

Bovine Hide:

Grass-fed bovine provides the highest concentration of Type I and III collagen — the primary structural proteins of skin.

Hydrolyzed Chicken:

Chicken sternum collagen is the gold standard source of Type II — critical for deeper skin structure support and the cartilage matrix beneath the dermis.

Eggshell Membrane:

A unique source of Type V collagen that also delivers elastin and fibronectin to support skin's elastic properties and overall structure.

Wild-Caught Marine:

Marine collagen has the smallest peptide size, meaning it absorbs faster and reaches skin cells more efficiently than any other source.

Avian Sternum:

Naturally contains glucosamine, chondroitin, and hyaluronic acid — providing natural skin hydration and moisture retention from within.
